Dear Dr. Branderburg, thank you. I'm sorry for the trouble, however, according to the postal rules it (my letter) supposed to be delivered to the address on the envelope which is your address. I do not know why it is different. Since COVID-19 we observe international amnesia of good service practices. My letter was forwarded to your address and not to the central post address in Stockholm. It is easier to say COVID-19 then deliver the mail to your doorstep. Dr. Branderburg, could you please take your time and pick up the letter. Could you please have a pen ready and fill the forms at the postal office, to avoid additional trouble. Thank you. I'm sorry for the trouble. Please accept my apologies. Kind regards, Anne.

Hi Anne,

I now got some mail that I am supposed to pick up from the central post office. I don't know whether it is yours. It could be anything.

It will perhaps be sent back if I don't come.

Could you please let me know your address? Thanks and I'm sorry for the trouble. Kind regards, Anne.
